FRAME HOUSE

late 19th century

Fenby Farm Road
Westminster vicinity

private

The frame house is a representative late nineteenth century rural Victorian style farmhouse that was part of the Fenby Farm. Features typical of the period are its L-shaped plan, steeply-pitched gabled dormer, and porch bracket ornamentation. The interior woodwork consists mainly of molded door frames with corner blocks. The house has been uninhabited for several years and will probably soon be demolished.
